he participated in the exodus from Nauvoo in 1846, and after spending the winter of 1846-47 at Winter Quarters, he started for the Valley in the spring of 1847, crossing the plains in Capt. Ira Eldredge's fifty, which was the first company to arrive in the Valley after the pioneer company. He married Melissa Barney Oct. 21, 1854. She was the daughter of Royal Barney and Sarah Bowen Estabrook of Amherst, Ohio, and came to Utah in 1852. In 1857 (Nov. 12th) he married Esther Maria Davis, daughter of Franklin Judson Davis and Anna Richmond. Following are the names of his children by his first wife: Nymphas Cordion, Sarah Melissa, Joseph Royal and Betsy Emeline. The children by his second wife were Franklin Judson, Stanley, Unice Louisa, Alva Nymphas, Alphonso J., Annie Maria, Frederick, Ella Maria and Melissa. Bro. Nymphas also married Elizabeth Chadwick Green (a former wife of Alphonzo Green) Oct. 2, 1912. Bro. Murdock was ordained successively

From July 15, 1877, to 1891 he acted as Bishop of the Charleston Ward, where he settled in 1864 and to which place he had moved his family in 1865. In 1867-68 he filled a mission to the Eastern States. He participated in the early troubles in Utah, taking part in the so-called Echo canyon war in 1857 and later in the Walker and Black Hawk Indian wars; he was a member of the company known in early Utah days as minute men. At Charleston particularly he took a most active part in all matters pertaining to the improvement and upbuilding of the place. He was one of the organizers of the co-operative store there, and was throughout one of Utah's representative men. He was ordained a Patriarch April 6, 1901, by Apostle Abraham O. ESTHER MARIAH DAVIES MURDOCK

Esther Mariah Davies was born March 13, 1838 at Pickerington, Canada, daughter of Franklin Judson Davies and Ann Richmond. Married Nymphas Coridon Murdock

December 6, 1857. Died November 12, 1909.

Esther Mariah Davies, was the second wife of Nymphas Coridon Murdock. When a child, her father owned a sugar bush. They made syrup and brown sugar.

They later came to Nauvoo. Her father taught school and was a wheelwright by trade. Brigham Young had him stay in Nauvoo to help make wheels and wagons. Her mother died on the way to Salt Lake.

In Salt Lake she later worked as a milliner. They always divided food with others and Brigham Young promised her father that neither they, nor their children's children should ever want for bread.

She married Nymphus Coridon Murdock in Salt Lake Endowment House December 6, 1857. They were allotted land by Brigham Young where the Newhouse Hotel stands. They built a two-story adobe home there.

She was the mother of nine children.

She always found time to help others. In the summer she and her children used to take the dairy cows up to the big spring in Deckers Canyon. She made wonderful butter and cheese. She was president of the Young Women's Mutual for some time. She and others often sat under the Dry Creek bridge patting their babies all night to keep them from crying for fear of Indians.

She was truly a noble mother and pioneer.
